Dear Colleagues

I hope this email finds you well.

We are about to embark on our appointments process for Interpretations Committee vacancies that will arise in 2024. This will be one of my last tasks as Nominating Committee Chair as I complete my second and final term as a Foundation Trustee on 31 December 2023, after which my fellow Trustee and Nominating Committee Member, Ken Robinson, will take the reins.

As is our usual practice, I am writing to ask for your assistance as colleagues both past and present and as those who are most familiar with the uniqueness and complexities of the IFRS Foundation's work to assist with our search for candidates to fill three vacancies on the Interpretations Committee from 1 July 2024. This is following the successful reappointment process that saw the three eligible members reappointed for a second three-year term with effect from 1 July 2024.

As the Interpretations Committee is a small, technical committee, attracting relevant skills and experience are paramount. We continue to aim to maintain an overall balance on the Committee. Trustees will look for those who complement the qualities of the existing members whilst replacing skills lost as the Committee membership rotates. When reviewing nominations, Trustees will be looking at the individual's technical expertise, relevant general experience and skills as well as fulfilling our objective of diversity and reaching a gender balance. For this particular search, users of financial statements, preparers and those who are based outside the European region will be of specific interest.

For your reference, our advert can be found here. It will be placed on both the Economist's and the Foundation's websites. When considering nominations, please refer to the advert where you will also find links to the relevant page(s) on our website where further details about the role and criteria can all be found. We would appreciate that any names you suggest for the roles above should be supported by a CV and any other relevant background details.

A response to Jill Robinson (jrobinson@ifrs.org) by 28 February 2024 would be much appreciated.

Kind regards

Michel
