Subject: [!!Massmail]SSB Nominations Committee Global Invitations For Applications

Dear colleagues,

As we come to the year's end and I wrap up my term as IFAC's CEO, I want to bring to your attention the recently announced Invitations for Applications for the International Audit and Assurance Standards Board (IAASB) and the International Ethics Standards Board for Accountants (IESBA), for three-year terms beginning on January 1, 2025.

Most of you will have received the Public Interest Oversight Board's (PIOB's) announcement, and I wanted to provide IFAC's perspective for your consideration.

IFAC member organizations and key stakeholders will continue to play an essential role in contributing to a successful nominations process for these global standards-setting boards. Strong candidates from the accountancy profession are always welcome, especially from the Small and Medium Practices (SMP) marketplace, as this is a targeted area for IESBA in 2025. I also believe that IFAC member organizations have the best connectivity in their jurisdictions to identify and nominate candidates beyond traditional accountancy and audit partner pools and the Professional Accountancy Organization's (PAO's) membership.

Our collective goal should be to use this opportunity to nominate individuals from diverse backgrounds who will best convey critical national public interest perspectives while contributing to the development of international standards.

The 2025 Invitations for Applications are seeking individuals from the following diverse backgrounds:

IAASB (up to seven vacancies, including potential re-appointments of four members):

- Individuals with experience in sustainability matters and data and technology expertise that involve technology-assisted analysis of information;
- Individuals with national or international standard-setting, policy, and regulatory experience in setting, implementing, and enforcing audit and assurance standards;
- Individuals with experience in an investment firm or representing investor views or someone familiar with investor needs; and
- Individuals with experience as corporate preparers, directors, and audit committee members.

In addition, the IAASB is seeking to increase their geographic representation from the following regions: Latin America, the Caribbean, and Asia.

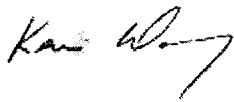

For IESBA (six vacancies, including potential re-appointments of five members):

- Individuals with experience as preparers or users of financial and sustainability information and individuals able to provide input on enlarging the scope of the Code of Ethics;
- Individuals with experience with governance and culture in the corporate or public sphere, with knowledge of professional service providers; and
- Individuals with national standard-setting policy and regulatory experience in setting, implementing, and enforcing ethics and independence standards.

The application period will remain open until February 9, 2024. To learn more and apply, click here to visit the PIOB's website or click the "Apply" button below. If you have any questions, please contact the nominations support team at nomination@lacpa.org.lb.

The Boards look forward to your participation!

Cheers!

Kevin Dancey
